Dear Olympic College Students, Employees, Community Partners and Friends,

I am pleased to share with you the progress and accomplishments of the 2013-2014 school year. It was a very productive year.

During the 2013-2014 year, Olympic College programs and events have put Olympic College in the forefront of the community. The College’s developing partnerships, associate degrees, and bachelor programs have helped meet the needs of individuals in our community.

Our partnership with Western Washington University (WWU) and Olympic College Poulsbo resulted in expanded opportunities for our students to obtain bachelor degrees without leaving the peninsula. Students are now able to receive an undergraduate degree from WWU in Environmental Policy, Environmental Science, or, as of fall 2014, Business Administration.

A substantial grant of $200,000 from the SBCTC allowed us to kick off Olympic College’s second baccalaureate program. The first cohort of the Bachelor of Science in Information Systems program started in fall 2014.

The College’s residence hall, purchased by the Bremer Trust, is now open to students. Living near campus and in community enriches the experience for our local and international students; it will also help attract students from around the world.

We are anticipating breaking ground on the new 75,000 square foot College Instruction Center (CIC) that will be home to the Art, Music, Drama, and Health Occupation programs.

Olympic College continued to expand its involvement with the community. The College held a diversity conference Are your Roots Showing: Exploring Diversity in the Puget Sound Region last June. The event was so well received, the College will be hosting its second annual diversity conference Explore, Exchange, Experience next summer.

The Bremerton campus hosted a successful multi-departmental Homeland Security training exercise; the Kitsap Emergency Management team and local police and fire departments converged on campus for the event.

This annual report showcases a few of Olympic College’s highlights and achievements over the past year. It showcases our efforts to enrich education in our area for students, employers and the communities we serve. It is very fulfilling to us when community members tell us how proud they are to have Olympic College in the community. Thank you for your support and please join us to help make this year even better.

Sincerely,

David C. Mitchell, Ph.D.
President, Olympic College
Olympic College was awarded a $200,000 competitive grant from the State Board for Community and Technical Colleges (SBCTC) to initiate a Bachelor of Applied Science (BAS) program in Computer Information Systems (CIS).

The focus of the grant is on building Science Technology Engineering and Mathematics (STEM) pathways from K-12 to the baccalaureate level. The college developed a baccalaureate program in Computer Information Systems, with the first cohort starting in fall of 2014. The new Bachelor of Applied Science Information Systems prepares graduates to strategically plan, manage, and apply information technology solutions to business processes and challenges.

This broad-based, rigorous degree is designed for students with a variety of experiences and backgrounds. The curriculum is competency-based and aligned with in-demand industry certifications to ensure that students can demonstrate successful mastery of relevant knowledge, skills, and abilities.

These new grants are being made possible due to the recently passed Washington State Legislature Senate Bill 5624 which aligns high demand secondary STEM or career and technical education programs with applied baccalaureate programs.

Community college baccalaureate programs provide local residents with additional affordable educational opportunities close to home.
Olympic College hosted its first regional diversity conference on June 26–27, 2014. Are Your Roots Showing: Exploring Diversity in the Puget Sound Region was the theme for this groundbreaking conference. The conference offered participants the opportunity to enhance their understanding and skills in the areas of diversity, inclusion, multiculturalism and social justice. Feedback shows this as being a tremendously positive step for not only our campus, but for the surrounding community.

This event drew in nationally recognized keynote speakers Dr. Joy DeGruy and Yoskiko Harden as well as a full agenda of subject tracts with at least five options for each of the five concurrent sessions for the more than 200 individuals who attended the conference. The diversity conference brought together educators, students and community members and helped individuals increase communication, build relationships, and experience diversity in a whole new way.

The Conference Planning Team did a remarkable job, and is already planning the 2015 conference scheduled for June 25–26.
Olympic College Poulsbo & Western Washington University

Olympic College and Western Washington University Partner to Offer Bachelor’s Degree Programs on the Kitsap and Olympic Peninsulas
Olympic College and Western Washington University partnered to offer baccalaureate degrees with the creation of the Western Washington University Center at Olympic College in Poulsbo.

The collaboration between Olympic College and Western Washington University is expanding as Western plans on having tenure track faculty located in Poulsbo to provide undergraduate and graduate programs on the Kitsap and Olympic Peninsulas.

“I am pleased to be collaborating with Western Washington University on this exciting new endeavor. They are a strong institution with great vision and it is truly an honor to be partnering with them,” said Olympic College’s President, David Mitchell. “Moreover, partnerships such as this are crucial to developing new and innovative educational opportunities that better serve the diverse population of our community. These new programs along with the flexibility of the Poulsbo location will greatly broaden the horizons for individuals and businesses that call Kitsap and Olympic Peninsulas their home.”

Western Washington University President Bruce Shepard agreed, saying, “Though Western has been active in Poulsbo for some time, we are very excited about the new opportunities that this partnership with Olympic College creates for the citizens of Kitsap County and the Olympic Peninsula as a whole.”

“The WWU Center at Olympic College Poulsbo is a terrific example of how we can leverage our respective strengths to serve critical needs in the state, especially for those who are time- and place-bound.

Mothers, fathers, working professionals—Anyone who wants to pursue the brighter futures that higher education makes possible—will be able to do so,” he said.

Western’s Huxley College of the Environment and WWU’s Woodring College of Education currently offer courses on the peninsulas. In 2014, Western's College of Business and Economics will offer quality business education tailored to the needs of students and employers on the peninsulas.

“Businesses on the peninsulas are innovative, with a focus on sustainability and technology, areas in which the College of Business and Economics has strengths,” said Brian Burton, Dean of Western’s College of Business and Economics. “We hope to translate those strengths into a program in Poulsbo that will give the region’s students the education they want with the flexibility they need, with a combination of Poulsbo- and Bellingham-based faculty.”

In addition to the College of Business and Economics creating a business degree for the Poulsbo program, Huxley College of the Environment will be adding two new tenure track faculty positions to Poulsbo; they will serve students at Huxley’s Port Angeles, Bremerton, Everett and Poulsbo sites.
Shelton faculty and staff engage with students and community to enhance learning and strengthen partnerships.

Carmen Hoover, English Faculty

We work within the Social Sciences and Humanities Mission: “To promote critical thinking and inquiry, to nurture creative expression, to inspire a lifelong love of learning, and to foster strong and clear communication. We are committed to social justice, the investigation of human cultures, and to the liberal arts tradition—to teaching our students to learn how to learn.”

Professor Hoover has been teaching English and Humanities courses at Olympic College (Shelton) for 19 years. She has received numerous awards and acknowledgements for her creative teaching style, curriculum development and written work. Last year she had an article published in Beyond Inclusion and Beyond Empowerment: A Developmental Strategy to Liberate Everyone.

Her courses include: American History and Film, Creative Writing, English, Native American Literature and Film, Rock’N Roll: Music and Ideas and Early College for Native Youth.

Kandace MacKaben, Business Management Faculty

The Business Management program mission is: “To assist individuals in mastering the management, leadership relationship while adapting strategies that foster personal growth, technological skills, and the ability to manage change in a dynamic global business environment.”

Professor Mackaben has taught at Olympic College (Shelton) for 7 years. Last summer, she partnered with Mason Matters to host a four day Youth Entrepreneurship camp on the Olympic College Shelton campus. Underserved, at-risk students, ages 16-19 from the community were invited to participate. One day of group engagement included a field trip to tour a Tiny House. Youth were then engaged in the process of developing a mini-business plan for a business idea that had to be adapted to a Tiny Business Structure. It was a collaborative effort between the faculty member involved and several local community agencies that supported the camp with a grant from the Pacific Mountain Workforce Development Council.
Basic Studies at Evergreen Elementary

Olympic College Shelton, through the Adult Basic Studies program, began offering English classes at Evergreen Elementary in the fall quarter 2012. The average class enrollment over the last six quarters has been 18 students. Evergreen is a combination magnet/neighborhood school for second language acquisition where approximately 65 percent of their students are native Spanish speakers learning English as a second language. Students come from Mexico, Guatemala, and Taiwan. The students range in age from 19–65; most students are working parents. They work in hotels, forestry, shellfish harvesting, landscaping, and sales. Virtually all the students say they are taking classes to improve their English for better employment opportunities.
Residence Hall

The international student population has been growing year-to-year and many local students need stable and affordable housing so they can continue their studies. In response to the growing need for housing, the College opened its own residential hall in fall 2013.
The benefits of a residential hall are many. International and local students will have a convenient place to live and more opportunities to learn about other cultures and perspectives. With an established residence hall, the international student population will continue to expand and contribute tuition to support other college programs and services.

The residential complex is located on the northwest corner of 11th Street and Warren Avenue near the Bremerton campus. It was purchased by the Bremer Trust, an independent nonprofit organization that has given more than $5 million to Olympic College since its inception in 1987. Gifts to the College from the Trust have funded programs, services, student scholarships and supported advancement of employee skills and expertise.

Initially, the hall will accommodate 36 international and local students. In a few years, the college expects to have more than 80 students staying in the residential hall. Income from student rent will pay for one residential housing staff person, additional security, and property maintenance.

This is an exciting move for Olympic College, but one that is not unique among community colleges in our state. Edmonds Community College, Shoreline Community College, Skagit Valley College, Green River Community College, and Highline Community College are just some of the community colleges that offer residential living to local and international students. The residential hall is a natural outcome of our mission to enrich our diverse communities through quality education and support as students achieve their educational goals.
On Friday, September 20, 2013, Olympic College hosted and participated in a homeland security training exercise for an “active shooter on campus” scenario with the support of local law enforcement agencies, Kitsap County Fire District, Harrison Medical Center, the Washington State Youth Academy, and Kitsap County Emergency Management.
Olympic College began setting up Thursday afternoon, September 19th. The exercise started at 6:00 A.M. Friday morning and concluded by 3:00 P.M. The activity was centered inside the Science and Technology building, but the entire Bremerton campus was impacted. During this exercise, simulated weapons were used, along with 100+ actors in full makeup, replicating injuries and casualties. A large presence of law enforcement, emergency medical services, and fire services were also staged in advance all around the Bremerton campus. The exercise area was clearly marked with caution tape to control scene access and ensure participant safety.

The purpose of the exercise was to improve responder readiness and response at all levels to a mass casualty event. With continued cases of school violence across our nation, it is imperative for schools to anticipate and prepare for any type of incident.

“The opportunity to design this type of exercise and practice with over 300 responders, players, and actors is unique to this area and we are gratified for the support of Olympic College, our volunteers, and the many participating agencies of Kitsap County,” said Mike Gordon, Interim Director, Kitsap County Emergency Management.

Olympic College President David Mitchell agreed, saying, “Collaboration with local agencies enhances not only the safety and security of our students and employees but institutions throughout the region and our surrounding communities.”

Olympic College continues to work closely with local law enforcement agencies as collaboration facilitates better responses and, in many instances, can successfully address a situation before it happens.

(Adopted June 2008)
In order to reach its full potential, the College must provide its programs with adequate facilities that can enhance learning and support growth. Olympic College's drama, music and arts facilities are getting a new home to better serve these growing programs. Its Health Occupations programs are currently scattered in multiple locations and would better serve both their students and the College if they were located on a single campus. The replacement of the Art, Music and Theater buildings with a new College Instruction Center that can accommodate multiple programs is Olympic College's highest capital priority. The 75,000 square foot College Instruction Center will meet the broad needs of the College for state-of-the-art, multipurpose instructional space.
Dear Friends of Olympic College:

I am extremely pleased to write a message to the Olympic College community highlighting the changes and activities the Olympic College Foundation embarked upon during the 2013-2014 academic year. This year, we saw the creation of an Alumni Association, increased student scholarship awards, and hosted exciting fundraisers to support the students and programs of Olympic College.

While I am excited about many of the major accomplishments of this year’s Foundation Board, a major highlight for me came on Thursday, November 21, 2013 when the Board unanimously voted to create an Alumni Association. As a proud Olympic College Alumnus, I have looked forward to this opportunity for all past students. The Alumni Association hosted a couple of successful events during the year and I look forward to working with the Alumni Association in the upcoming years.

I am pleased to introduce you to our two newest Olympic College Foundation board members. Sheila Collins, a Nuclear Engineer with PSNS, and Ginny Duff, with Kitsap Community Walk. Each new board member brings their unique skills and background to the table and we are excited to have their input and expertise on our Board. We look to the future with great conviction. The Olympic College Foundation hopes to create more opportunities for our students and campus to grow, develop and make the community an even better place to live and work. We hope you will join us on this very important mission.
