Seattle Sounders Game

On Saturday, April 13th, the International Office organized a field trip to the Seattle Sounders game in the CenturyLink Field. Despite the cold and windy weather, it was an amazing opportunity for us to meet new friends and have fun together. We met up with everyone at the Bremerton ferry terminal and took a ferry to go to Seattle. Once we got to the Seattle Ferry Terminal, we walked all the way to the stadium. Although many things were expensive, we still got some snacks and drinks so that we could have more fun while watching the game. It was a bit of a rainy day, but we still had an amazing time because we shared the fun experience and got to know more about each other. The game started out strong and it ended with a win for our team! Some students went home right after the game was over while others spent the rest of the day with friends in Seattle. We had a great time enjoying the game and making new memories. – Kazuki Asakawa

Sugar painting is the traditional Chinese folk art, using hot and liquid sugar to create two-dimensional art. This type of art has originally emerged in the Ming Dynasty (1368-1644). This culture was first influenced by the art of Chinese traditional two-dimensional arts such as shadow play and paper cutting. Sugar painting is a very popular performing art among the public, especially children because of its gorgeous image and the fast making. Although the sugar painting looks very complicated, professionals have their own techniques to paint the image just in few minutes. Basically, the sugar painting is not different from the general painting but it requires the painter to draw the picture with all lines connected. It means the painter needs to finish the painting with one line before the sugar solidifies. In order to do the fast painting, painters need to practice and design the image with one connected line at first, then they will practice the painting on the designed image. This process seems very simple but it absolutely requires workers to have patience. - Lingli
